Enrichment Course in Book Reviews

Rationale

Many aspiring writers get their first by line by writing a book review. Many successful writers continue to write book reviews throughout their careers. This course prepares students to excel at this genre of writing with the goal of having a book review pitch accepted for publication by the end of the course. We discuss the different types of book reviews, from the evaluative review to the round-up review to the review-essay. Students learn how to pitch a book review, how to read a book for the purposes of reviewing it, and how to conduct the outside research necessary for writing a strong review. Course readings include book reviews from a range of publications to show the different approaches to book reviewing. Guest speakers provide students with insight into how to launch a career as a reviewer and how to use book reviews to develop other writing projects.

Program Outcomes

- Demonstrate the knowledge and skills needed to effectively Review the Literature.
- Describe the fundamental concepts and rules of reading and writing that apply to business activities, the employment function, and academic writings.
- Demonstrate skills needed for reading, comprehending and preface writing.
- Communicate Reviews via written and oral presentations.
- Integrate learning from Reviews through teamwork, leadership and motivational skills to organizational scenarios and evaluate outcomes.

CO3	To cover some of the best places to share your review online and what to discuss in the body of your review.
CO4	To write and share a book review using the tips and guidelines covered in the class.
CO5	To help students communicate more effectively in spoken and written contexts, read and comprehend scholarly texts, and take notes more efficiently.
Unit Number	Course Content	Hrs.
1	Listening, Speaking, and Critical Thinking: In this module, students will learn some skills necessary for listening to and speaking about academic topics at the post-graduate level.	5
2	Writer's Workshop: In this module, students will learn some skills necessary for writing about academic topics at the post-graduate level.	5
3	Reading and Note-taking: In this module, students will learn some skills necessary for reading and note-taking about academic topics at the graduate level.	5
4	Book Review Presentation: In this module, students will learn academic English language skills to communicate effectively in spoken and written contexts. The strategies to read academic materials and take notes more efficiently will be taught. The guidelines for common assignments in MBA courses such as academic presentations and critical reviews of a scholarly text will be taught. At the end students will orally present a Book Review.	5
5	Capstone: In the capstone project module, students will not learn new information as you did in the previous modules, but rather apply the knowledge and skills you learned from the other modules in this academic certificate in order to complete a series of tasks. The word "capstone" was historically used to signify the completion of a building. The capstone was considered the most important and last stone placed on a newly constructed building. In keeping with this tradition, your successful capstone project signifies students have completed the certificate program and earned a crowning achievement.	10
